The move brings to Boise a company with billions of dollars of sustainable projects around the globe

October 2, 2018 (BOISE, Id) - Greenbriar Capital Corp. Broadway Avenue, Suite 530. The company's former head office was in Newport Beach, Calif.

"Idaho is one of the fastest growing business friendly states in America," said Jeff Ciachurski, CEO of Greenbriar. "With a highly favourable tax and fiscal regime, Idaho provides benefits to high growth start-ups with its highly educated and tech-savvy workforce."

Boise has been home to Greenbriar's Chairman, Dan Kunz, for more than four decades. "Boise is a perfect fit for Greenbriar, and I'm honored to be a leader of the team in my hometown," said Kunz. "Greenbriar will help elevate Boise's reputation as a premier place in the U.S. for start-ups and emerging technologies."

"We are pleased to be calling Boise our company's home," said Ciachurski. "We look forward to expanding our operations as we progress to move forward one of our most important projects, the 100MW Montalva solar project in Puerto Rico."
